

AirforLife®

EMERGENCY OXYGEN SUPPLY

AirforLife® is an emergency escape device which provides the user with a portable, self-contained source of oxygen. The device is designed to aid in an escape from emergencies, such as domestic fires, or assist in a rescue by the emergency services.

85% of all fire related deaths are due to the inhalation and effects of smoke and gas. AirForlife® is designed for simple operation and rapid deployment. When the button on the top of the canister is pressed, a flow of cooled oxygen is released to the mask which is supplemented by air purified by the smoke and chemical filters.

EVACUATION KITS ►

To help plan for potential evacuation evacuation kits are available which include :

- 22 liter capacity canister
- Fast fit holster- easy to don and aid hands free evacuation.
- Anti mist and smoke goggles

HOW IT WORKS

- Airforlife® contains a patented, specially treated activated carbon which is purposely designed to store a much larger volume of oxygen than otherwise can be held in a canister of the same size.
- Enables the escape period to be three times longer than similar sized devices
- Airforlife® uses pure oxygen which can be released as and when the user requires to breathe, even further extending the time available to escape or survive
- Incorporates twin carbon filters, to help purify the smoke filled air

KEY BENEFITS

- It gives the user a valuable oxygen supply in a situation where their oxygen supply has been significantly reduced or has become contaminated.
- The AirForLife® device enables the user to breathe for a more prolonged period (more than 200 breaths), giving them time to escape or be rescued.
- Ideal for assisting in situations such as house fires, hotel fires, high rise building fires, cruise ship fires, overground train fires, underground train fires and terrorist acts.
